Course description

There are three components to the work in this course: the theory you need to be able to understand processes of connected speech; the transcription symbols and conventions that you need to be able to note them; and exercises to help you on your way to being able to speak more fluently and more like a more native-speaker. All three components will be assessed.

There will be contact courses, in which you will work each week with a teacher, and self-study courses, in which you will work with materials posted on Agora and will be assessed by a teacher. Students who have been advised that their pronunciation needs intensive work should sign up for the contact courses.

Students who sign up for the self-study courses will also be welcome to attend classes but will not have priority for language lab places.
