Course description

This MA exam colloquium addresses Master students about to complete their degree course, and especially those focusing on British literature and culture. If you are thinking about or writing your Master's thesis, this class offers you scope to present and test your ideas.

We will discuss questions of approach and method, general outlines, or excerpts from your primary material. You will benefit both from the others' comments on your work and from the discussion of the work of fellow students.

Dates for the precise schedule will be settled in the first session.
