Description:

“Writing is easy – all you have to do is leave out the wrong words.” (Mark Twain)

The central aim of the course is to give the students the opportunity to become acquainted with writing for university purposes. This implies producing texts of an academic nature that have been in part researched as well as being critically reflected on. A wide variety of topics will be focussed on, each of which is designed to provide a skeleton for further consideration where qualified references (cited of course!) are essential to fulfilling the task. The texts or essays that are to be regularly produced are required to be concise and argumentatively sound. To ensure the correctness of the texts frequent assessment and evaluation will take place. Furthermore basic writing skills form an integral part of the course, e.g. being consistent with style and register.
