Beginn:	20.10.2010

This lecture class is part of the obligatory introductory module together with the seminars 1a. While the 1a classes concentrate on acquiring practical analytic skills and knowledge necessary for the analysis of the English language system, this accompanying lecture series is meant to provide you with a larger picture: what does it mean to study language scientifically? What are the central problems of linguistics? What different approaches to the study of language exist? What kind of a language is English, and where does it stand in comparison with other languages?

Sprechstunde während der Vorlesungszeit:	Mi 12.30-14 Uhr, Phil 1157
