Course description:

This course gives an introduction to applied linguistics from various perspectives. It focuses on the topics that provide a comprehensible picture of first, second, third and additional language acquisition, multilingualism, grammar and vocabulary teaching and learning, language use in media, language planning and language policy. The course offers some practical implications of the research in the field of applied linguistics. This seminar takes into consideration the academic and professional needs of students. Participants of the seminar can explore various research methods, case studies and data depending to their interests, background, experiences and programme of study.

In order to successfully follow and complete the course it is necessary that you have taken and passed the module Einführung in die Linguistik.

Requirements:

Students are expected to attend class regularly and participate in discussions. Students who require full credit points are required to submit a written report.

Extra Credit:

There are no extra credit assignments for this course. If you miss 3 or more classes, you may submit a make-up assignment. Please contact me when you have missed, or know you will miss, 3 or more classes.
