Course description:

“It doesn’t matter what you read, what matters is how you read it.”

Noam Chomsky

In this course we shall be assessing a wide range of texts, ranging from academic articles to contemporary lyrics. Students shall be expected to participate actively, both in class and with regard to the preparation and presentation of appropriate reading material.

Throughout the semester we will examine not just what we read, but how we read it and students will be encouraged to discuss their own relationship and approach to reading.
