Description:

This course re-examines aspects of European settlement in Australia from the perspective of its indigenous inhabitants and how related issues are expressed in literature and public discourse. Particular focus will be placed on film, drama and poetry as sources, and in particular the SBS documentary series of the same name. These sources and materials based on them will serve as the foundation for advanced language practice, both creative and academic, in reading, writing, listening and speaking.

Assessment:

A number of assignments and homework tasks will be set and assessed as part of the overall evaluation. These will include:

- one short oral report based on issues raised in an assigned episode of the series and moderation of a discussion moderated on AGORA
- one group project to be presented in written form
- two essays

Active participation is expected of all participants

Regular attendance is required in all of the courses at the IAA
