Course description

This course will hone in on Canadian drama and its diversity of theatrical styles. Students will concentrate on play scripts and critical literature from across the country in order to explore the plurality of identity in this literature of the north. The focus will be on use of language, imagery, motifs, cultural references and humour. Students will evaluate language, build vocabulary, and investigate common themes by writing response papers, an essay, a creative assignment and preparing a presentation. Assessment will be ongoing.
