This colloquium is open to students in the final phase of their studies. Besides general information on final exams and organizational matters, you will be given the opportunity to present your BA/MA thesis in class and receive feedback from your fellow students on your arguments, the structure of your research project, and other aspects of longform academic writing. Each session two students will present their project for 20 minutes and then we have another 20 minutes for discussion and feedback. It is not required that you already know the topic of your thesis at the beginning of the semester. The colloquium will also help you to find and specify a topic. However, it is still recommended to take the colloquium in the same semester in which you want to start writing your thesis.

Course Requirements

In order to receive credit points for this class regular and active participation is required (because it is a fortnightly course, you can only miss one session). Additionally, students have to present they are current research project/thesis.
