Course description: Welcome to Introduction to British Literature and Culture! In this course, we will talk about the key concepts of the study of literature and culture. We will explore the basic methods and theoretical underpinnings of textual analysis and use both to explore selected texts from poetry, prose and drama. Students will not only learn how to approach and analyse literary texts academically, but also how to transfer their ideas into writing and are required to keep a reading journal to record their ideas and responses to both literary and academic texts we will read throughout the course. At the end of the semester, students will thus be acquainted as much with basic literary analysis as with the requirements of presenting their ideas in an academic context. Please note that in addition to attending the seminar, students will also have to attend one of the weekly tutorials accompanying the course. Please consult the institute's website to make sure that you can attend one of the tutorials. All necessary texts for the course will be made available via the university's e-learning platform Agora. Course Requirements Regular and active participation in both seminar and tutorial, preparation of the reading material, short homework assignments as part of an informal reading journal, two short academic essays Note: Students who fail to attend the first session will automatically will lose their place in the seminar to make space for students on the waiting list.
