

Instructor: Jolene Mathieson
 Title: Introduction to American Literature and Culture
 Course: Seminar Ia + two-hour tutorial [AA3, LAA3, LAA16, IAA12, IAA14]
 Number: 53-542
 Time: Wednesdays, 14-16h + two-hour tutorial
 Room: TBA
 Starts: 04.11.2020

Course Description:

Rogier van der Weyen, The Magdalen Reading, 1435

Vincent Van Gogh, The Novel Reader, 1888

Jeffrey Dale Starr, Woman Reading in Parc Monceau, 2012

Hello and welcome to the Institute of English and American Studies! This introductory seminar is a mandatory course within the Einführungsmodul and is designed in a two-fold manner. First, it will provide first-semester students a broad and yet intensive introduction to the key concepts, central topics, and basic terminology necessary for the academic study of literary and cultural texts. Here you will learn what it means to analyze texts in a scientific context using scholarly methods. Second, it will serve as an arena for second-semester students to deepen your understanding of these issues and to sharpen your skills. Together we will all engage with the rich literary and cultural heritage of the United States by considering canonical and some non-canonical texts from an array of media and genres. These texts include narrative and lyrical poetry, ranging from Walt Whitman to Denise Levertov, the award-winning play, Father Comes Home From The Wars, by Suzan Lori-Parks, a couple of short stories as well as very brief excerpts from a few novels. We will also analyze graphic literature, and we will workshop ideas for your research paper. By the end of the course, you will have become acquainted with a number of cultural artefacts and you will be familiar with literary and media genres, critical terminology, and technical analysis.

Requirements: As the stated goal of this seminar is to empower each and every one of you to approach and engage with literary and cultural texts as scholars, this seminar will focus on developing your analytical thinking skills and enhancing your ability to express yourself in academic writing. As such, the Studienleistung will consist of thorough preparation of all reading material for both the seminar and the tutorial, completion of short homework assignments for both the seminar and the tutorial, and active participation. The Prüfungsleistung consists of an 8-to-10-page research paper. Attendance in the first session is mandatory. Anyone absent on the first day of class will be dropped from the course.

Texts: Texts will be uploaded on a weekly basis at our Agora room.