Kommentar:

This reading course will look at the arts and related aspects such as education, publishing, and funding in Britain today. Key terms and issues in the arts debate - such as high art and popular culture - will be addressed, and the historical background to contemporary art and culture explored where appropriate.

Various reading techniques will be employed, and every participant will have to read extensively on one individually-chosen topic to prepare a presentation to the class. Short writing exercises and tests during the semester will serve to consolidate the learning experience.
