Course description:

A History of British Literature is an introductory lecture that offers an overview of the developments in British literature and culture from Beowulf to New Literatures in English. Students will become acquainted with historical and cultural developments. They will get to know typical genres, literary strategies and representatives of various literary periods. The works will be contextualized with reference to major philosophical, social and cultural transformations. This lecture will also test students' study skills (their ability to prepare for quizzes, to differentiate between very and less important pieces of information, to take notes, etc.). Please be prepared to work in order to get the two credit points in this lecture.
