Course description:

This Practical Skills course is a special studies/project work alternative to a standard weekly course. Therefore a great amount of independent work and energy will be required! In this course you will be asked (in small groups/pairs) to:

- design and write a film script (story board) to teach a single grammar or lexical point
- actually create such a video podcast (ca. 5 min)
- and create exercises and/or games to accompany it.

Groups/pairs will meet regularly with the instructors as schedules permit and not necessarily always at the seminar time stated above. All developed films and materials will be compiled to create an online course for university language learners on the OLAT platform.

Particular interests and/or skills in graphic design, drama, drawing, animation, film, creative writing, and/or computer programming will be great assets for the creative nature of this course. An animation tool will however be provided for you to use.

Interested? Please contact the instructors above (Phil 1154) directly for more information and to register.
