Course description:

This exam colloquium addresses students about to complete their BA or MA degree course. If you are thinking about or writing your thesis, this class offers you scope to present and test ideas related to your thesis. Topics may include questions of approach and method; you will present the general outline of your thesis, and we may discuss excerpts from your primary material. You will benefit both from the others' comments on your work and from the discussion of the work of fellow students. We will also consider options for the oral exam.

Dates for the precise schedule will be settled in the first session.
